Welcome to Our Lady of Grace!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy.

The parish has a “Children’s Chapel” located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents are welcome to make use of this chapel with restless children. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or feast day will always be incense-free.

GUEST COLUMNIST

The God of Flesh and Bones

by Alice Camille

Maybe one of the biggest problems we have with religion is that the whole business is far too “spiritual.” When something important to us can’t even be held in our hands, we begin to doubt how crucial it is. Every day, we face the really central stuff: putting food on the table, getting money in the bank, making the baby stop crying or the spouse stop complaining or the parents stop nagging! Each day has its own demands and challenges that have to be met just to keep our lives functioning. We have to bathe. We have to eat. As inconvenient as it often is, we have to sleep.

Because life is so demanding, religion often gets relegated to the “expendable” category. After all, “God’s still in his heaven” whether we pay much attention. Saying our prayers seems ethereal and often appears unproductive. Time in church can be dismissed as wasted—after all, how much laundry gets done in this hour, how many bills get paid, who stocks the groceries while we just sit here? If the choir this week is a little off-key or the homily isn’t jazzy enough, we may feel that religion has proven to be a disappointment again: an hour ventured, nothing gained.

But what if religion were more than a spiritual enterprise? What if getting a jolt of the celestial perspective, with a moral application to boot, isn’t what it’s all about? If we could take religion in our hands and hold onto it, it might become as real to us as the thousand shards of living we pour ourselves on like a libation.

For most of the citizens of first-century Jerusalem, Easter morning was a bit of a yawn. No one was there when the stone was rolled back, and few saw the burial linens that the disciples read as smoking guns of the Resurrection. Many weeks later at Pentecost, a few thousand who had come up for the feast saw the transfigured apostles, drunk with the Holy Spirit: Now that impressed them! Hearsay about the ghost of Jesus was one thing: Galileans acting like linguists on the streets of the capital was quite something else. When bona fide cowards find their courage and become heroes, that’s always newsworthy. Easter was an untouchable event, but Pentecost dawned in stereo, with lots to hear and see.

But the truth is, nothing gets a crowd excited like a miracle. Jesus understood that a good miracle was like flashing the Divine Calling Card, as a preacher friend of mine says. When the deaf hear and the blind see and the lame walk, you can keep your gift of tongues to yourself. When good news gets this tangible, people may start to take it seriously.

That’s why Peter and John struck pay dirt at the Beautiful Gate, when they called on the name of the Lord Jesus to strengthen the legs of a man who had never taken one step. When that man leaped up and danced around, people saw faith in action. The timing was perfect for a proclamation. They had the crowd’s attention.

Got food?

The empty tomb was an attention-getter for those who expected to see Jesus in it and were astonished to see that he had gotten out of it. But when he returned and appeared in their midst, that was good enough even for the Thomases who needed to put their fingers in the nail marks. Presence is always more convincing than absence, especially when the message is love. But was this Jesus the real one, the original one, or some chimera arising from hope and desire? He showed them his wounds, always a reality check for humans like us. But then Jesus asked for something to eat. How normal! And how profound.

Jesus, the gospels show us, had the advantage of a preferred relationship with God, fostered in prayer but affirmed with distinct proclamations of being the Beloved Son. But he knew that the rest of us needed a little assistance to keep the world of faith from floating away from us. So he set for us a repeatable banquet of bread and wine, something to get our hands on and to consume in utmost real-time. Nothing is so real to us or so affirming of our humanity as food. Nothing could affirm that Jesus was alive and back in town as sitting down to dinner, just like old times.

FORMED PICK OF THE WEEK

Did Jesus Really Rise From The Dead?

The Truth of the Resurrection

Using a popular question-and-answer format, Carl Olson examines the historical evidence concerning Jesus's controversial fate. Whether you are a believer, a skeptic, or something in between, prepare to be challenged by the logical arguments in this provocative and insightful book.

Read on formed.org

"This book argues convincingly that the Resurrection actually occurred and that all the arguments against its historicity have fallen flat."

—Karl Keating, Catholic Answers
