Welcome to OUR LADY of GRACE!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

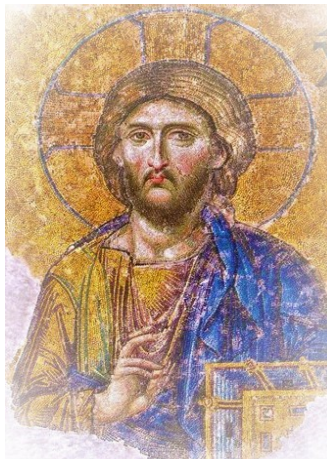

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy. The parish has a Children's Chapel located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents with restless children are welcome to make use of this chapel at any time during Mass should it be necessary. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or holyday will always be incense-free.

Invitation to the R.C.I.A.

Our Lady of Grace Parish welcomes all who seek to enrich their faith life and explore the possibility of becoming a Catholic Christian. Our community shares and celebrates this journey with them through a process called "The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults." If you are curious about what Catholics believe and may be interested in learning more about joining the Catholic faith—or perhaps you are an adult Catholic looking to be fully initiated—you are cordially invited to enter the R.C.I.A. process and experience a new and enriched meaning to your life through renewed faith and love. For more info, please contact Deacon John Sawaya at (858) 869-5079 or jsawaya@olg-church.org.

ALICE CAMILLE

How to Set the World on Fire

Today's gospel is not a go-to guide for pyromaniacs. But it is about passion, the fire that consumes hearts, lives, and sometimes whole generations in its intensity. There is passion with a small "p," like the kind that overwhelms acolytes of Marilyn Monroe or Cary Grant films who are still captivated by her screen radiance and his ebullient charisma. We may enjoy passionate interests, hobbies, or sports loyalties. We may carry a passion for justice, peace, civil rights, or animal rights. Passion reaches its crescendo when we arrive at the kind we are willing to die for: the beloved one, our children, the freedom of our country, or the God to whom we pledge our lives now and in the world to come.

Being aflame with passion ourselves is one thing, of course. Setting the world ablaze with our experience is quite a different matter. Just try to share the excitement of falling in love with a disinterested bystander. Show your baby pictures around to strangers on the bus. Try to sell your conservative uncle on the urgency of aid to poor countries. Or give a blow-by-blow account of the boxing match last night to someone who isn't a fan. Unlike brush fires in dry regions that have plenty of kindling just lying around to ignite, setting fires in people who have no ready lumber to catch the blaze can be a formidable if not hopeless mission.

When you think of biblical passion, the prophet Jeremiah is on the short list. He had the zeal of youth, the love of God, and the fear of kings in him, three things that enhance any missionary endeavor. Emotions were high every time Jeremiah spoke, whether it was public proclamation or private anguished prayer. And the citizenry of Jerusalem in the sixth century B.C.E. did not need to have their emotions heightened much. Their nation was under siege, the enemy armies were at the gates, and their civic and religious leaders alike were in the business of lying to them about the severity of the situation.

Still, with all his fiery declarations and boldly provocative street theater, Jeremiah could not sway the population nor persuade his kings to act in God's favor. Instead, he wound up at the bottom of a muddy cistern inside a vulnerable city in the middle of a critical food shortage. This is what comes to those who attempt to set the world on fire, even when you've got God on your side—or, more to the point, you're on God's side.

The complete failure of Jeremiah's prophetic mission is rarely noted. No kings reversed course, no crowds rallied in his defense, no signs were well received. What happened was the opposite of success by any normal measure: several kings were dragged off in chains, Jerusalem was destroyed, the Temple robbed and ruined, and the best of the nation carted off to Babylonian exile. We might suggest that Jeremiah's best success was in making it into the canon of scripture. But after 25 centuries of proclamations, there is no evidence that anyone heeds the prophet's message even now. Ask the average person in the pews who Jeremiah is. If there is any name recognition at all, the reply might well be, "He's sort of depressing, isn't he?"

Jerusalem, six centuries later

Jesus has come to set a fire on the same soil Jeremiah once preached, prayed, and smashed pots on. The crowds around him, even his own disciples, are not prepared for pyrotechnics. They think Jesus has come to give them free wine and bread and fish like before; maybe to heal Aunt Salome's arthritis and repair Uncle Tommy's fractured femur. They like his teaching; it's much nicer than what some of the traveling teachers in these parts have to say. Jesus talks about flowers and sheep and trees and treasure. He tells stories, some of them really funny or a little shocking. The joke is often on their leaders. They like all that.

Jesus never tries to tempt their sons to take up arms in his holy war. He doesn't eye their daughters or ask for donations. Nobody is guilted into joining his cult or adopting ascetic practices at all. Everyone is free to come, listen, and walk away to supper afterwards. It's all very pleasant.

Except that none of these activities arrives at the heart of the matter: what Jesus is actually doing here, why he came, what his ultimate purpose is. He hasn't come to give people a night's entertainment, some lovely ideas, a free supper, or better vision. He didn't come to replace their doctor, their baker, or their priest. If they saunter on home feeling downright peaceful after a day's worth of teaching, they probably don't have ears to hear him. Jesus didn't come to establish peace on earth. He came to draw lines in the sand that a lot of people wouldn't cross if their lives depended on it. Families will be divided, and communities, and nations. Marriages will falter, and friendships will be put to the test. Good people will argue bitterly over distinctions that were once invisible to them. After this fire finally gets going, the blaze will burn a hole through history and keep on going to the end of time.

The fact that no one, not even those closest to Jesus, seem to suspect this reality does not change the fact that the ignition has already begun.

The cloud of witnesses

The word martyr means "witness." Despite the many portraits of bloody countenances religious art presents to us, the impact of these lives is not really in how they died but why. Their testimony to faith in Jesus Christ was worth surrendering all they had to purchase it. And so they joined the cloud of witnesses, to continue to say what they know.

The lives of the so-called red martyrs, and all the white ones too—those saints that gave themselves in sacrificial living day by day—are so many pieces of evidence that the blaze Jesus set upon the earth continues to burn down the centuries. If the zeal of the Holy Spirit burns in us, then we, too, must display it where the world can benefit from its warmth and light. And we also must be prepared to face that line in the sand.
