Welcome to OUR LADY of GRACE!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

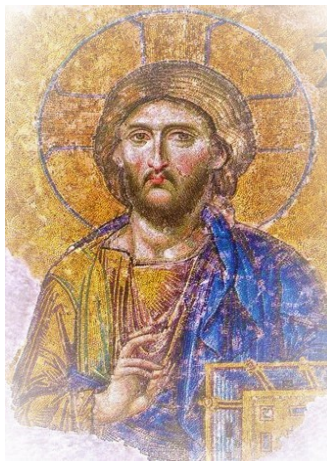

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy. The parish has a Children's Chapel located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents with restless children are welcome to make use of this chapel at any time during Mass should it be necessary. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or holy day will always be incense-free.

Invitation to the R.C.I.A.

Our Lady of Grace Parish welcomes all who seek to enrich their faith life and explore the possibility of becoming a Catholic Christian. Our community shares and celebrates this journey with them through a process called "The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults." If you are curious about what Catholics believe and may be interested in learning more about joining the Catholic faith—or perhaps you are an adult Catholic looking to be fully initiated—you are cordially invited to enter the R.C.I.A. process and experience a new and enriched meaning to your life through renewed faith and love. For more info, please contact Deacon John Sawaya at (858) 869-5079 or jsawaya@olg-church.org.

GUEST COLUMNIST

ALICE CAMILLE

You Know the Time

At this point, some of us might like a respite from Apocalypse. After all, it's Advent now—isn't this the season for Mary mild calmly awaiting her child? Only in carols and in the lore of culture, as it turns out. Apocalypse, with its urgency, ultimacy, and immediacy, is an eschatological adrenaline rush that overwhelms the church at the close of the liturgical year. But as the liturgists would have it, it remains the mood for the opening of the new church year. Kairos time is a seamless garment, moving in cycles and circles but never in the clean, straight lines of Kronos time with neatly demarcated beginning, middle, and end. The clock ticks forward. Eternity doesn't tick at all.

We mortals governed by the tick of the clock are a little partial to the notion that we're making progress. Isn't all this time getting us somewhere? More precisely, isn't time going somewhere, purposefully and significantly? Time matters to us in a way that is quite personal. It is the measure of our lives. A lost hour is a kind of tragedy. The passage of an instant may cost us everything we have and are. We want to think time is important, even to God who stands outside and impervious to its deconstruction of our world. Somewhere in eternity, is there one angel ordained to keep an eye on the time?

A divine wake-up call

Saint Paul, at least, was watching the clock, or perhaps the sundial. Maybe he didn't have much else to do during those years under house arrest. He wasn't one of the original followers of Jesus who heard the Lord make frequent references to his "hour" that was always up around the next bend; never mind that the details of its significance were foggy. That hour of glory—masked as horror—finally did arrive, and it became the fundamental prism through which all of human history would now pass. Paul believed that. He wasn't waiting on that hour.

But a new hour captured his attention: the time of Jesus' return in glory. Paul seemed as aware as Jesus had once been that the hour was waiting just up ahead. In the richness of his faith, Paul perceived that the present hour and the glorious hour were separated by mere heartbeats. The night is advanced; the day is at hand. Salvation is nearer than it was, and always nearer than we think.

How do you prepare for an arrival urgently longed for? How do you make yourself presentable for the great love? You bathe to purify yourself. You select your clothes with care. You prepare a sumptuous table. You pour out your treasure on a gift that will become the emblem of all your unspoken devotion. You wait. And you wait. No matter how long or difficult the period of anticipation, you keep vigil for your heart's desire. Because if you cannot wait for love, truly, there is nothing else to wait for.

Lovers have always waited

Isaiah, son of Amoz, anticipated an hour of glory centuries before Jesus and Paul. In days to come, he predicted, the ancient division of nations would be mended. Hostility would be surrendered; the implements of war would be beaten into farm tools. The power to destroy would yield to the force of life. It would be a time like none since the creation of the world.

How could Isaiah speak of peace with such certainty, when the world had never known such a thing? A prophet speaks the mind of God, according to tradition. But what gives a prophet the courage to say the words is a special virtue called hope. Like faith and love, hope is a theological virtue that will survive the end of the world and make the leap into eternity. It is fair to say it is therefore not of this world. If all you have to work with is today's news, hope is not a conclusion you might ever arrive at naturally.

Isaiah foretold a peace the world has not known and cannot give. Jesus journeyed toward an hour of mortal humiliation that would likewise reveal the power of divine glory. Paul hungered for the end of all that ends so the things that last could finally be known in their fullness. Nothing apparent to the eye revealed the arrival of those events. And no one but a lover would hope for so vast and improbable an outcome.

Stay awake!

The prophet Isaiah lived 28 centuries ago. His vision of a day of peace has not yet arrived. Paul lived almost 2,000 years ago, and he died in prison and Jesus didn't come back. Jesus trusted in his Father and died on the cross. All this hope, all this waiting, and it might seem like the lovers have been betrayed.

For believers, of course, the cross became a door through which the glory of the Resurrection could pass. You have to "be there" to accept this; in a sense, you have to love this love in order to open your heart to it. And the realization of all these hopes is closer than appearances suggest. Paul wrote that salvation has come nearer since we first put our faith in this story. He, a great student of telling Kairos time, knew how to read a clock without hands and without numbers, which is the transection of eternity into time. Paul strung historic hopes together in saying that "Christ Jesus is our peace," and that the great divide between heaven and earth was bridged at the cross. In this light, Isaiah's hope has its answer: The Prince of Peace did arrive, and the way of peace is already inaugurated.

What remains is for Paul's great hope to come to pass. This is what we celebrate in Advent, the living hope of Christ's return. The best way to prepare for it is as an arrival urgently longed for. Water. Food. Gift. Wait.

FROM the PASTOR

VERY REV. PETER M. MCGUINE

Dear Parishioners,

I write to let you know that on Fri, November 22, Anne Egan, by mutual agreement and at her request, was released from her contract to serve as principal of OLG School due to personal and family reasons that require more time and attention. As a result, Anne is no longer the principal of OLG School.

This week, I met with our Vice Principal, Rachel Sato, to develop a plan for interim administrative leadership at our school. A longer-term solution for administrative leadership will be developed in conjunction with the staff of the Diocese of San Diego's Office for Schools after the Christmas and New Year's Day holidays.

I take this opportunity to thank Anne for her service to our school since July 1 and wish her all the best in the months and years ahead.

I also acknowledge and very much appreciate the steadfast and exceptional commitment of our school's faculty and staff to our students, families, school, parish, and indeed, the Church. The level of professionalism they bring to their work is unparalleled and does not go unnoticed by me.

As we enter the season of Advent, we recall that all things will find their fulfillment in Christ Jesus our Lord. Let us keep our eyes and hearts focused on him.

You remain in my prayers; please keep me in yours.

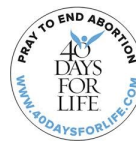

Our Lady full of Grace, pray for us!
