Welcome to OUR LADY of GRACE!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy. The parish has a Children's Chapel located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents are welcome to make use of this chapel with restless children. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or feast day will always be incense-free.

Office for the Missions
Summer Missionary Appeal

This weekend, we are pleased to welcome Rev. Devadhasan Masillamony to OLG. "Fr. Devdas" — a priest of the Diocese of San Diego and the pastor of Santa Sophia parish in Spring Valley — will be sharing the story of St. Michael Shrine, part of Christ the King parish in the Diocese of Kottar, India. Proceeds from this Mission appeal will be used support the Shrine and their efforts to make the Good News of Jesus Christ known. Your generous donation unites you as a missionary to our brothers and sisters around the world who need our help. Gifts may be made by way of the special yellow "Missionary Cooperation Plan" envelopes in the pews (make checks payable to "OLG") or the "Online Giving" link on the parish website, www.olg-church.org.

Please pray for the repose of the souls of:

Conrad Brazis

and

Guillermo Suarez

May their souls and the souls of all the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.

How to be Church

by Alice Camile

As practicing believers, it seems we spend our lives taking church lessons. Some of us had more formal lessons in parochial school or religious ed, but all of us are participating in a course in ecclesiology just by being in the pews. Not all that we learn is useful, and unhappily, not all that we absorb is true. Where should we go to find out what it means to be church and how to embrace this identity and obligation more fully?

The Letter to the Ephesians is one answer. It is considered to be the great manifesto on the church. Either it represents the maturity of Paul's theology on the subject toward the end of his life, or it's a later composition by one of his admirers. Some scholars have viewed it as too Pauline to be Paul: It employs every buzz phrase Paul ever came up with, often end on end in a way that sounds like a graduate student trying to impress. It's been proposed that someone wrote Ephesians as an introduction to Paul's school of thought, or as a preface to an original collection of his letters. However it evolved, Ephesians is sufficiently important to the church's self-understanding that it is read nearly in its entirety during seven consecutive weeks in Cycle B—starting this week.

One of the ideas that Ephesians hammers home is the image of Jesus Christ as conduit—frequently sentences begin or end “in Christ” or “through Christ Jesus.” There are 60 such phrases, ten of them occurring in today's short passage. And by the way, today's passage appears as one long sentence in Greek, as if the writer couldn't take a breath without telling us all these things that are bestowed upon us “in Christ.” The church has certainly taken the hint. “Through him, with him, and in him” is a phrase that we proclaim with utmost solemnity at every Mass.

Amos gets the boot

The writer of the Ephesians had one great advantage over the prophet Amos: His audience was in-house, and he spoke to the already convinced. Amos, a southerner sent to the northern kingdom of Israel, was neither invited nor welcomed when he came calling with his message of harsh criticism and accusation. He was told to go home to Judah in no uncertain terms by the powers that be.

Amos knew who he was, a shepherd and tree farmer. These were not exactly what you would call credentials, especially when arguing theology with the priest in charge of the great shrine of Bethel. The best Amos can do is play the God card. He didn't come to Bethel on his own cognizance, he insists, but because God compelled him to. We don't know if this ploy was any more successful for Amos than the wrongdoer who claims the devil made him do it. There is no record telling us what became of Amos after his stint as a prophet of doom. Maybe he returned to his flocks and his trees and resumed a quiet life. Or maybe someone in the northern kingdom did him in. Amos' big mistake? Prophesying in a time of great prosperity. When folks are doing wonderfully well, they don't appreciate hearing that God isn't as thrilled with their bounty as they are. It seems people have always liked to believe that God is responsible for their good fortune, not that God expects them to spread it around.

Two by two

Jesus goes easy on the disciples when he sends them out on their first missionary assignment. He sends them in pairs, so they won't be as lonely as Amos was on the road. He gives them plenty of instruction about how to dress, what to say, and, most importantly, when to leave. He also equips them with one thing Amos didn't have: powers to liberate and cure. A few signs and wonders might have helped Amos make his case.

Because the bottom line is, the disciples had no more credentials than Amos did. They were fishermen, a tax collector, a dissident. Nathaniel seemed profoundly unemployed lounging under the fig tree when Jesus first spied him. Certainly none of them had a theological background, had studied Torah vigorously, or had prepared for pastoral ministry. These men weren't religious professionals, and it might be interesting to consider how few religious professionals God employs in the work of salvation history altogether. The shepherds and the fishermen outnumber the cult prophets and Sanhedrin officials in a way that should make us rather nervous.

And according to the gospels, the first mission went off wildly well. All these fellows had with them was the authority of Jesus, and it was enough to drive out demons and cure the sick. We don't hear the number of times they had to shake the dust off their sandals and move on, however. Satan didn't always fall like lightning from the sky.

Through Christ Jesus

The people of the northern kingdom weren't all wrong, of course. Every blessing does come from God, as the opening prayer of Ephesians reads. This berakah, not unlike the Canticles of Simeon and Zechariah, is a song of praise for the wonderful works of God on our behalf. But it repeats the mantra that all goodness comes about “in Christ”—which is to say in love, in wisdom, and in accord with the divine plan. When we divorce the blessing from the divine intention, then we become in need of a shepherd from Tekoa to set us straight.

As the writer of Ephesians declared and the 12 original disciples learned, the goodness of the moment is only the first installment of an inheritance to come. The church now possesses the authority of Christ in her teachings and sacramental life. But we must use this authority “through, with, and in” Christ for the blessing to be realized as a blessing for all. If we hoard the goodness for ourselves, some dusty sandals might be shaken fatefully in our direction.
