May his soul and the souls of all the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.

Welcome to OUR LADY of GRACE!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy. The parish has a Children's Chapel located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents with restless children are welcome to make use of this chapel at any time during Mass should it be necessary. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or holyday will always be incense-free.

Letter to a Suffering Church

Feeling hurt, angry, or demoralized about the sexual abuse crisis plaguing the Catholic Church? Our parish wants to help, and that's why we've ordered copies of a new book for interested parties. It's titled Letter to a

Suffering Church: A Bishop Speaks on the Sexual Abuse Crisis by Bishop Robert Barron. Bishop Barron is a bishop in the Archdiocese of Los Angeles and he's the founder of Word on Fire Catholic Ministries. Complimentary copies of Bishop Barron's book are available on a special table in the main entrance of the church while supplies last. One per household, please. If you'd like to form a study group with other parishioners, a free group discussion guide with guidance and sample discussion questions is available at SufferingChurchBook.com. Finally, please go to olg-church.org for a brief introductory video message from Bishop Barron.

To Holiness Through Persistence

The telemarketers keep calling despite local and national legislation, exempt listings, and the continual abuse of phone operators by irate would-be customers, those calls come every day, starting earlier and going later every season. And so does the “spam” of email or messaging. Add to that pop-up ads on the internet, billboards on the road, TV commercials, and the profusion of promotional mail, and one thing is apparent: When it comes to making a buck, the business crowd never sleeps.

The only thing like the onslaught of the advertising world is spending an afternoon with a small child. One is guaranteed to be pestered to the point of no return, or as a mother recently described childrearing: It’s like being pecked to death by ducks. Children persist because it’s the only weapon they have against adult authority. If they can’t wear you down, they cannot hope to overcome.

Even the dogs in my neighborhood have something to teach me about persistence. Once one starts to bark, for whatever prehistoric reason has been hardwired into doggy brains to do so, the other dogs in the neighborhood will chime in, and pretty soon the cacophony becomes a self-sustaining enterprise. Until I am willing to become as persistent in dialing the numbers of each neighbor in sustained protest, the situation will not improve.

Persistence is not holy in itself

Once upon a time, sin was original. In time, however, it became derivative and finally tediously predictable. When it came time to register the first divine prohibitions regarding sin, God was able to boil it down to 10 categories. The sludge of millennia of offense was easily covered with less than a dozen Thou Shalt Nots! Human selfishness had become channeled into the spiritual equivalent of repetitive motion injuries. The more commonplace sin became, the less creativity it demonstrated. False gods, restless ambition, lusting, lying, cheating, stealing, killing—this comprised the canon of wrongdoing. Like a virus with no known antidote, sin had no need to produce many variant strains.

Even today, we speak of seven deadly sins, narrowing the field to pride, anger, greed, envy, lust, gluttony, and sloth. Technically, these seven conditions are not sins in themselves but are the predisposition for sinful acts. Cultivate these conditions, and you are well on your way to Sodom and Gomorrah, where sin was so grave and persistent that even the Infinite ran out of patience with the track record of those cities.

Scholars would like it to be known that Abraham does not advocate for those cities as is traditionally supposed. He simply explores the boundaries of divine justice by asking ever-narrowed questions about how far human sinfulness must go to reach the end of God’s compassion. At what precise point are the innocent implicated by mere proximity to the offense, becoming collateral damage in the holocaust of God’s outrage?

Just as the relentless sin of the desert cities cried to heaven for vengeance, so does Abraham’s persistent questioning lead to wisdom regarding the mercy of God. The Holy would most certainly spare a whole city for the sake of 10 good people. Too bad for Sodom that not even 10 can be found there.

Persistence must be toward righteous goals

Jesus urges his disciples to knock long and hard to gain admittance to their heart’s desires. In prayer, Jesus advocates interceding for what is most needed—food, forgiveness, and being spared the “final test.” As the popular saying goes, God will not give us more than we can handle; therefore, the final test is surely something we cannot handle, the last straw that puts us over the edge of personal endurance.

In the story of the interrupted night’s sleep, God is often viewed as a grumpy friend who answers the door not in friendship but out of the need to get this visitor off his porch. But this is not an accurate reading of how God responds to us. The point Jesus normally makes with these stories is that even human beings will do the right thing out of selfish motives, if nothing else. How much more can we expect from God, who neither sleeps nor slumbers and has no personal agenda?

God will not shortchange us by sending a snake (evil!) instead of a fish (symbol of Christian abundance). Nor will God send the scorpion (death!) when we ask for an egg (Christian symbol of new life). God is the source of life and author of everything good. If we persist in the struggle toward what leads to everlasting life, God will certainly respond, because that is God's struggle on our behalf as well.

The answer to a prayer

At one time or another, we've all prayed for something and not gotten the answer we were hoping for. This experience can lead to a sense of abandonment (God does not care about me), discouragement (praying is useless), or self-doubt (I must be a poor pray-er). It would be helpful to remember that Jesus once prayed for the cup of suffering to pass him by and it didn't. Does this mean God didn't care, pray-er is ineffective, or Jesus was lousy at it?

The second part of Jesus' prayer in the garden is crucial to our understanding: "Not my will, but yours be done." Jesus is well aware that things look different from the cosmic vantage point than from within the limitations of a disordered world. Saint Paul took up this theme in recommending that we keep our sights fixed on what's above and pray unceasingly. If we use the prayer Jesus bequeathed to his disciples as a model for our every pray-er, we might find staying properly focused an easier task. Integral to the prayer is the phrase, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done." Aligning our will to God's will is the best way to tune ourselves to God's frequency. How persistently God's will can be accomplished when the human will is no obstacle to grace!
