Welcome to OUR LADY of GRACE!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy. The parish has a Children's Chapel located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents with restless children are welcome to make use of this chapel. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or feast day will always be incense-free.

REMINDER: Flu Season Precautions
The parish is currently practicing safety precautions during the flu season.

Our traditional means of sharing the Sign of Peace and the Blood of Christ will return about mid-April.

Invitation to the RCIA

Our Lady of Grace Parish welcomes all who seek to enrich their faith life and explore the possibility of becoming a Catholic Christian. Our community shares and celebrates this journey with them through a process called "The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults." If you are curious about what Catholics believe and may be interested in learning more about joining the Catholic faith—or perhaps you are an adult Catholic looking to be fully initiated—you are cordially invited to enter the RCIA process and experience a new and enriched meaning to your life through renewed faith and love. For more information, please contact Deacon John Sawaya at jsawaya@olg-church.org or (858) 869-5079.

Looking for a Sign

If you were waiting for a sign from heaven to confirm that God was on your side, what exactly would you be looking for? And where would you go to look for it? Ancient people knew, or thought they knew, what a sign from heaven looked like. For one thing, it came from the general direction of heaven, which was up. It usually had something to do with stars or heavenly beings or uncontrollable forces like weather. A sign from heaven would be powerful, and chances are it would be terrible or at least terror inspiring.

If you wanted an advantageous position from which to receive such a sign, a mountaintop was a good place, being closer to heaven and the realm of God. In fact, one of the original names for God used in the Hebrew scriptures is Elohim, the “God of the mountain.” That’s why the Tower of Babel experiment made sense in a sad and ill-considered sort of way. The closer to the sky you got, the closer to the seat of true power you might expect to be.

The God of fire

Israel was not the only nation that thought of God and fire in the same sentence, of course, nor was it being original when it sacrificed burnt offerings in its religious rituals. Fire had long been considered a gift from the gods and a proper medium of communication between divinity and humanity. One can imagine that to a desert people in particular, it seemed obvious from the relentless presence of the sun that fire had a celestial origin. Fire could be seen as God’s calling card, sometimes a reward and at other times a punishment. The language of divine fire is spoken significantly in both testaments of the Bible. After all, fire is the ultimate medium of transformation. Though it has no apparent substance, whatever passes through it is irrevocably changed.

So Abram looked to the starry sky and found confirmation of the future God was promising his descendants. And in a state of trance he saw God’s covenant expressed to him in the powerful symbols of fire. The scene would be utterly frightening but for the comforting words of God’s promise. An elderly childless couple will be transformed into a mighty nation. Abram understands that the power of this God can bring such a change into being.

Seeing glory

Which was harder to see: the nation hidden in the two old people Sarah and Abram, or the celestial glory concealed in Jesus of Nazareth? One might think that the continual stream of healings and miracles emanating from their teacher would have tipped the disciples off. But apparently it took the mountaintop setting, radiant light, and the inexplicable presence of two famous and very historical holy men to cue Peter, James, and John that something glorious was hidden in the person of Jesus. Perhaps they had been hoping for a sign from heaven to confirm that Jesus was the one Israel was waiting for. Maybe it hadn’t occurred to them that Jesus might be the sign from heaven they sought.

Was the Transfiguration, then, a huge celestial prop arranged to wise up the feckless followers of Jesus? Or is it a literary prop used by the evangelists to wise up future gospel readers? Some scripture scholars consider the Transfiguration a post-Resurrection account of a revelation that has been anachronistically inserted into the earlier story, much like we celebrate Gaudete and Laetare Sundays embedded in their respective seasons as reminders that something good is on its way. A hallmark of Christian thought is the idea that what was, is now—and what will be is also remarkably at hand. The past and the future are simply two expressions of the “eternal now” of the realm of God. And the coming Kingdom, we might say, has already arrived.

This means that identifying the precise historical moment when Jesus was revealed physically and audibly as the divine Son is interesting but beside the point. More to the heart of the matter: Do we see Jesus as the Christ of God? Can we look at the once-and-future Jesus—in the manger, on the cross, and every step in between—as the revelation of God’s love for us?

The transfigured view

Visions and trances and apparitions give certain privileged glimpses into the divine realm that garner a lot of attention for their startling supernatural qualities. But they are all ways of saying, “Wake up! See the divine presence and activity all around you!” It was certainly true that the transfigured dazzling Jesus of that hour on the mountain, book-ended by prophets, was the same Jesus who walked and talked with his friends for years. This same radiant Jesus went to his Crucifixion, rose on Easter Sunday, lives in his church, and comes to us in word, sacrament, and the least of our sisters and brothers. Can we receive the holy presence with understanding in all of these forms? Or are we still looking for a mountaintop view, special lighting, and a little fire?

Of course our modern understanding of religion is not so primitive. And, of course, on some level it is. We still instinctively look up and out for signs of God’s presence when we might just as well look within. We are willing to genuflect in church but we don’t take off our shoes before the ongoing radiant presence of God all around us.

Heavenly citizens

Saint Paul prescribes a transfigured view of ourselves as an antidote to the urgency of our stomachs and the continual clamor of earthly things for our attention. As citizens of heaven, we are merely tourists in the land where money, power, fame, and security are the forces in charge. If we claim our citizenship in the Kingdom, our relationship to worldly dynamics can be a little more objective. Kingdom people are also more attuned to the idea that it is always “good for us to be here,” where the glory of God is breaking into time once more.
