Welcome to OUR LADY of GRACE!

Welcome to all who are joining us for the celebration of the Eucharist. There are many ways and parish organizations to participate in our life in Christ. See the directory on page 7.

We invite all who attend OLG to become registered members of our parish. Registration forms are available on the table in the main entry of the church or the parish office. Registration allows us to communicate and effectively provide for your needs. It is necessary for baptism, marriage, and godparent or sponsor certification.

Mindfulness of Others—Please silence all devices and refrain from using them during the liturgy. The parish has a Children's Chapel located in the northwest corner of the church. Parents with restless children are welcome to make use of this chapel at any time during Mass should it be necessary. We ask that this chapel, like the church itself, remain free of food and drink.

Allergies—The first morning Mass of the Sunday or holy day will always be incense-free. The Sunday 11:00 am Mass will always include the use of incense.

Invitation to the R.C.I.A.

Our Lady of Grace Parish welcomes all who seek to enrich their faith life and explore the possibility of becoming a Catholic Christian. Our community shares and celebrates this journey with them through a process called "The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults." If you are curious about what Catholics believe and may be interested in learning more about joining the Catholic faith—or perhaps you are an adult Catholic looking to be fully initiated—you are cordially invited to enter the R.C.I.A. process and experience a new and enriched meaning to your life through renewed faith and love. Please contact Deacon John Sawaya at (858) 869-5079 or use the "Contact us" link on the parish webpage.

Speaking in the Spirit of Truth

Here's a preacher's fantasy, if ever there was one. Newly ordained deacon Philip goes down to Samaria and proclaims Christ to the unsuspecting population. The crowd gives him its unanimous attention—a miracle in its own right. The unclean spirits in the populace flee before the golden words of gospel truth. People experience healing merely by being in the presence of such a proclamation. Baptisms follow. Great joy claims the city. And Philip is pretty happy, too, you can bet. He's having the kind of day most of us will not likely see in a lifetime of Sundays.

Then comes the ironic footnote to the story that all institutional Christians can appreciate. As soon as the apostles hear about Philip's unimaginable success, they send out reinforcements. They aren't really coming down to congratulate Philip and take him out for a victory dinner. Peter and John come down from Jerusalem to improve on the situation. There is this peculiarly Lucan need to underscore the authority of the apostles and tuck the deacons neatly into their place. Philip did well, of course, but he couldn't do it all. When it comes to the acquisition of the Holy Spirit—the sacrament of Confirmation by any other name—that can only be delivered by the right chain of command.

Don't feel sorry for Philip

We can still imagine Philip slept well that night on the sweet pillow of success. This situation would be especially true if he compared his performance and results with that of fellow deacon Stephen, whose inaugural homily didn't turn out so well (unless you count martyrdom as the ultimate applause). Because we never hear what became of the ministry of the other five—Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolas of Antioch—we can't say for sure if Philip's career was the brightest of the seven. Still, for his work in Samaria alone, he deserved his pension. Not that many in the early church survived long enough to collect one.

Religious professionals routinely admit that the ministry is its own reward. Sometimes we even mean it. Which is to say, sometimes we actually experience our call in this way. When we have minor-scale versions of Philip's golden day in Samaria, sure, ministry is the best job in the world. At other times, we may feel like cogs in the machinery, grinding away and wondering if the contraption is really working and effective in some big-picture way that we are not privileged to see. In those times Jesus reminds us, as he told his first disciples, that the Spirit of truth is not something the world accepts, sees, or knows. If it often feels like we are not getting the undivided attention for our message that Philip enjoyed, chances are we're not.

We might also keep in mind that scripture doesn't record what happened to Philip on all the other days and in all the other cities on his way to Caesarea. Yes, he did do well with one Ethiopian Bible study, but he also had to deal with the fanatic devotion of a rather annoying egomaniac, Simon the magician. Even when you win some, you lose some.

Evangelization takes to the streets

Obviously this is not a message simply for religious professionals, because by our Baptism all of us are called to be witnesses to the gospel. The universality of this vocation is very good news because our mission is to take the message to the ends of the earth, and that's a lot of territory to cover. For this purpose Jesus delivers to the church the spirit of truth, and we are all recipients of that gift. Like most Christian gifts, it comes with a built-in responsibility—which is not to say it's the gift that keeps on taking. It's more in line with getting the car keys on your 16th birthday. Very liberating, but not without a precise obligation to the greater community.

This gift is emblematic of our relationship to God and to others: Divine truth is intended for human in-

Paraprosdokians to Make You Think Twice

Paraprosdokians are figures of speech in which the latter part of a sentence or phrase is surprising and frequently humorous!

- To be sure of hitting the target, shoot first and call whatever you hit the target.
- Having knowledge means knowing that a tomato is a fruit. Wisdom is not putting it in a fruit salad.
- I didn't say it was your fault, I said I was blaming you.
- Where there is a will, I want to be in it.
- If I agreed with you, we'd both be wrong.

Seen in Recent Church Bulletins

- ◆ The church will host an evening of fine dining, super entertainment and gracious hostility...
- ◆ This evening at 7:00 pm there will be hymn singing in the park across from the church. Bring a blanket and come prepared to sin.

struction and consumption. The Spirit of truth reminds us that we are in vital relationship and are most certainly not orphans. Someone is looking out for us, loving us, and providing for us. The car keys, so to speak, are never handed over to somebody else's kid.

It's a sign of our belonging, then, that we are entrusted with the truth-talking Spirit. And it's a sign of our maturity in faith that we exercise this Spirit in our daily living. This fact doesn't oblige us to stand on milk crates in the park and shout Bible verses at passersby. We don't even have to imitate Philip's stirring example in Samaria and proclaim the gospel story in any literal way. To the evangelically inclined, it often sounds like a mealy cop-out to say all we have to do is live the truth we profess.

Yet gospel living is by no means an easy out or an inconspicuous testimony, if done courageously. When we are extravagant with our love, generosity, forgiveness, and compassion—especially in this time of pandemic, when all of these qualities are urgently needed in abundance—those around us will be staggered by the implications in our lives and in theirs. Think of how it impacts you when you see someone make a heroic decision. You find it almost incredible that a human being could choose so selflessly. What if we lived in the footsteps of Jesus, hour by hour?

Now more than ever, heroic living might become the only reasonable response for those accustomed to genuinely Christian behavior. By this, of course, we always mean something much different from mere moralistic rule-following. Christian behavior includes everything from eating with sinners and welcoming them to yielding up your body to the cross.

Why do you do that?

Always be prepared to explain yourself, today's epistle writer recommends. When we develop the habit of heroic Christian living, we're bound to attract some attention and not a few questions. But it's infinitely better to find ourselves in the position of explaining our courageous choices than in rationalizing and justifying our hypocrisy. I'd rather people try to puzzle out the mystery of my lavish forgiveness than the incongruity between what I believe and how I actually live. Sometimes heroic living will lead to a day like Philip's, and at other times it will be more like Stephen's. The tally is never taken in terms of worldly success anyway but in how closely we are united to the spirit of truth.

"Faith in the resurrection of Jesus says that there is a future for every human being; the cry for unending life which is a part of the person is indeed answered. God exists: that is the real message of Easter. Anyone who even begins to grasp what this means also knows what it means to be redeemed."

PSALM

Hope is Nourishing

Especially in these trying times, we may be tempted to dismiss hope as something akin to wishful thinking. Yet hope is a theological virtue, along with faith and love. These three put us into position for personal union with God. Hope, in particular, orients us perpetually in a Godward direction no matter where life takes us. As Cistercian monk Aelred of Rivaux declared: "What is hope but food for the journey to support us in the miseries of this life?" Cultivate hope by weeding out habits of negativity and cynicism.

"Now who is going to harm you if you are enthusiastic for what is good? But even if you should suffer because of righteousness, blessed are you. Do not be afraid or terrified with fear of them, but sanctify Christ as Lord in your hearts. Always be ready to give an explanation to anyone who asks you for a reason for your hope,"

COMMON PRAYERfor the 5th Anniversary of LAUDATO SI'

Loving God, Creator of heaven and earth and all that is in them, you created us in your own image and made us stewards of all your creation.

You blessed us with the sun, water and bountiful land so that all might be nourished.

Open our Mind and touch our hearts, so that we may attend to your gift of creation. Help us to be conscious that our common home belongs not only to us, but to all of your creatures and to all future generations, and that it is our responsibility to preserve it.

May we help each person secure the food and resource that they need.

Be present to those in need in these trying times, especially the poorest and those most at risk of being left behind.

Transform our fear and feelings of isolation into hope and fraternity so that we may experience a true conversion of the heart.

Help us to show creative solidarity in addressing the consequences of this global pandemic.

Make us courageous to embrace the changes that are needed in search of the common good.

Now, more than ever may we feel that we are all interconnected and interdependent, enable us to listen and respond to the cry of the earth and the cry of the poor.

May the present sufferings be the birth pangs of a more fraternal and sustainable world.

Under the loving gaze of Mary Help of Christians, we make this prayer through Christ our Lord.

Amen.

This is Why We Love Children

Ketchup: A woman was trying hard to get the ketchup out of the bottle. During her struggle the phone rang so she asked her four year-old daughter to answer the phone. 'Mommy can't come to the phone to talk to you right now. She's hitting the bottle!'

Police: While taking a routine vandalism report at an elementary school a police officer was interrupted by a little girl about six years old. Looking up and down at his uniform she asked, "Are you a cop?"

"Yes," he answered and continued writing the report.

The little girl continued, "My mother said if I ever needed help I should ask the police. Is that right?"

"It sure is," the officer replied.

"Well then," she said as she extended her foot towards him, "Would you please tie my shoe?"

Elderly: While working for an organization that delivers lunches to elderly shut-ins, a woman used to take her four year-old daughter on the afternoon rounds. The little girl was unfailing intrigued by the various appliances of maturity; particularly canes, walkers, and wheelchairs.

One day she was found staring at a pair of false teeth soaking in a glass. As her mother braced herself for the barrage of questions, her daughter merely turned and whispered, "The tooth fairy will never believe this!"
